IN the following pages two Persian works of considerable rarity are now, for the first time, clothed in a European dress, and offered to the Oriental Translation Committee, which has on all occasions evinced such zeal in promoting and diffusing the study of Eastern literature. For the use of these Tracts (illustrating Asiatic Geography) I am indebted to Sir William Ouseley, in whose valuable and extensive Collection of Manuscripts they are preserved. To him also I must acknowledge further obligations: together with the two Manuscripts, he communicated to me some passages of a translation which he had himself begun to make from them several years ago, but which he discontinued on undertaking the publication of his “Travels in various Countries of the East.” These passages I have gladly incorporated with my own part of the translation, availing myself, at the same time, of a few hints for short notes, which he obligingly added to his communication; and I shall here transcribe an extract from his answer to my Letter requesting some literary and biographical anecdotes of Sádik Isfaháni, and an account of the two works which, at Sir William’s suggestion, I had undertaken to translate:—*

“Of the two Persian Manuscripts which I have much pleasure in consigning to you, each is a complete and distinct composition,

* See the “Catalogue of several hundred Manuscript Works in various Oriental Languages, collected by Sir William Ouseley, LL.D., &c.” In this Catalogue (which was printed last year, 1831, and intended for private circulation,) the Geographical Tracts of Sádik Isfaháni are noticed (p. 11) under the titles of “Tahkík al Iráb,” (two copies, No. 380, in quarto, and No. 381, in folio,) and “Takwím al Buldán,” No. 333, a folio MS.

although, as both treat on the same subject, they are bound together in one volume. The first work, entitled ‘Tahkík al Iráb,’ (تحقیق الاعراب) gives, in alphabetical order, the names of countries, cities, rivers, and other objects geographically interesting, with short descriptions. The second MS. is entitled ‘Takwím al Buldán,’ (تقویم البلدان) and likewise exhibits, in alphabetical order, the names of various places, with descriptions, (shorter than those given in the former work,) also the degrees of longitude and latitude. From what points these are computed the author does not state; but it is evident that he follows those eastern geographers who, like Nasír ad’dín Túsi, Hamdallah Kazvini, and Ulugh Beig, calculate their longitude (از جزایر خالادات) ‘from the Fortunate Islands,’ and their latitude (از خط استوا) ‘from the Equinoctial Line.’

“Respecting Sádik Isfaháni (as our ingenious author is commonly styled) I have been able to obtain but little information. His principal work, the ‘Subhh Sádik,’ (صبح صادق a General History of Asia,) occupies four large folio volumes: one of these, comprising the ancient part, is in my Collection. He composed also on different subjects, chiefly historical, many tracts, (some of which I possess,) constituting a Miscellany denominated ‘Sháhíd Sádik’ (شاهد صادق): to this belonged the two tracts now in your hands, and I believe that it did not contain any other work on the subject of geography.

“In one of his historical compositions he is entitled at full length Mírzá Muhammed Sádik ben Mírzá Muhammed Sáleh Zobeiri Isfaháni, Azadáni.* A note made above thirty years ago by an accomplished friend, who brought those historical manuscripts to Europe, states that Sádik Isfaháni had visited many parts of India, where he died about one hundred and fifty years before; †

میرزا محمد صادق بن میرزا محمد صالح زیبیری اصفهانی *

ازادانی We may reasonably suppose that Muhammed Sáleh derived the surname Azadáni from the village of Azadán, which Sádik describes as a place belonging to Isfahán. (See the “Tahkík al Iráb,” p. 2.)

† I have lately found a date which proves that Sádik Isfaháni was employed on his great work, the “Subh

and various passages scattered throughout his Geographical Tracts show that he was much better acquainted with that country than most Persian writers.

“ He has not quoted any authority for the geographical positions in his second work, the ‘ Takwím al Buldán ;’ but that he consulted the Tables composed by Nasír ad’dín Túsi, Abu’ l’ Fedá, and Ulugh Beig, and the admirable Nuzahat al Kulúb of Hamdallah Kazvini, we can scarcely doubt, although it will be found on examination that he differs from them in numerous instances respecting either the longitude of certain places or the latitude, or sometimes both. He has supplied a multiplicity of names omitted by them, and to many which they give he has added short descriptions : of his Tables also, the order, being alphabetical, seems to me a far more convenient mode of arrangement than that which was adopted by the older geographers above mentioned, whose system causes some difficulty in finding the name of any particular place without a previous knowledge of the climate, kingdom, or province to which it belongs.

Sádik” above mentioned, in the year 1045 of the Muhammedan era, or of Christ 1635. This date occurs in his account of Noah’s Deluge.

“ The Tables of Abú' l Fedá, Ulugh Beig, and Nasír ad'dín Túsi, were printed (with Latin translations) above an hundred years ago, at Oxford, in Hudson's ‘ Collection of Minor Geographers.’ * As this valuable and useful work (which has latterly become extremely scarce) does not appear in the list of your books, I send the third volume containing those Tables, so that you may form a just opinion respecting the comparative merits of Sádik Isfaháni and his predecessors.

“ In my translation from some articles of the ‘ Tahkík al Iráb’ you will perceive that I have not inserted the نصبت, a minute, and prolix enumeration of all the letters which compose a name, and of the vowel accents which influence each syllable of that name. However necessary in eastern writings, where the accents and diacritical points are often ambiguously expressed or altogether omitted, this ضبط becomes superfluous when the name of a place is accurately printed, not only in Arabic or Persian characters, but at the same time in letters of our alphabet, which can express all vowel accents with considerable precision. The learned Greaves, who translated Abú' l' Fedá's 'Chorasmia,' was induced by these considerations to omit the ضبط: his Preface, to which I refer you, sufficiently explains this omission.*

* “ Restat ut Lectorem moneam, me in Tabulis, tam Arabicis quam Latinis, columnam omisisse quam Abulfeda الضبط ‘Nominum fixationi’ assignat; ubi consonas et vocales omnes, quæ formationi vocum cujusque civitatis inserviunt, disertis verbis enumerat. Quam insulsum esset et delicatis auribus ingratum, si tanquam puero abecedario singulas literas et apices Lectori indicassem! At quod nostris ridiculum videtur, Arabicis, Persis, Turcis, quin et Hebræis et Syris, plane necessarium est; qui non, sicuti Græci et Latini, vocales in eadem linea cum consonis connectunt, sed extra lineam vel supra vel infra locant, aut omnino festinandi studio abjiciunt. Inde

“It would be difficult to ascertain how, in a work professedly treating of Geography alone, some articles totally unconnected with that subject first crept into the alphabetical arrangement of local descriptions, confounding persons and places in the series of names. Thus the account of a tribe entitled Ák Kuínlah (اق كوينله), or Báiandur (بايندر); of the Seljúkian prince called Tatish (تتش); of the fireworshipper Mazhdak (مزدك), who founded an heretical sect; and two or three other short passages, which we may suspect were, through the copyist’s inattention or mistake, transcribed from some historical work lying maxima in legendis eorum libris difficultas, major in intelligendis labor, et insuperabilis, præcipue in hominum locorumque nominibus, errandi necessitas. — Columnnam illam الضبط sine lectoris dispendio penitus à Tabulis removimus; quam, si tanti sit, poterit ex Latinis Propriis Nominibus, in quibus vocales inseruntur, restituere;—in Latina interpretatione illud literarum ضبط omissum, reperiri tamen e regione in pagina Arabica,” &c.—Chorasmie et Mawaralnahræ (hoc est regionum extra fluvium Oxum) Descriptio, ex Tabulis Abulfedæ, &c. Præf. p. 16. before him. I have marked them with a pencil; and in your translation of this Geographical Tract (the 'Tahkík al Iráb') they certainly would seem misplaced: of each, however, some mention might be made in the form of a note. But every name of a person from whom any country or city has received its denomination belongs legitimately to the subject of geography; as Tálísh, Khazar, &c.

"I beg leave to repeat my offer of assistance in conducting this work through the press: with such a task, long experience has rendered me familiar; but to you, on account of your distance from London, it would prove both tedious and inconvenient.

"I am, dear Sir, yours, &c.

"WILLIAM OUSELEY."

Offering this extract as a Preface to the following publication, I shall here observe, that attention has been paid to Sir William's advice respecting those passages which are not strictly geographical; the contents of each being briefly mentioned in a note, as the reader will perceive in pp. 2, 12, 16, 23, &c. I shall also observe that, according to Sir William Jones's System of Orthography, (published in the Asiatic Researches, vol. i., and recommended by the Oriental Translation Committee,) the letter á (having an accent above) is used in expressing Arabic or Persian names, to represent the broad or long sound of our a in fall, call, and as Ámul, Shíráz. The letter í, accented in the same manner, expresses the sound of our ee in peer, feel, and as in Shíráz above mentioned: and ú, likewise accented, denotes the sound of our oo in boot, moon, &c.; thus in Kúfah. Without accents those letters (a, i, and u) have their short sounds: a, as in man, battle; thus Kazvín, Tabríz, Marv, &c.: i in imp, as Isfahán, Mirbát: u, as in bull, full, &c.; thus Suhrvard, Dábul; but in Persian words the u is never pronounced like our u in pun, mutter, &c. Although the short a may be the proper symbol, the short e, as Sir William Jones remarks in his work above quoted, may "be often very conveniently used" to express the first vocal sound; and in the word America (with which he exemplifies his remark) we find both the short a and e : thus he writes chashm (چشم), raft (رفت), ber (بر), perveresh (پروزش), &c. But on this subject it seems unnecessary to dwell ; and I shall only add, that in the first work, the “Tahkík al Iráb,” all the names of places are printed (at least where they first occur) in the Arabic or Persian characters ; and of the “Takwím al Buldán,” the whole text is printed, as, in fact, the short descriptions contain little besides the names of places, with the degrees of longitude and latitude. Of these, a few have been omitted by the Persian transcriber : and as the reader will find noticed in two or three places, some words, or letters, have been partly effaced by accidental injury, but not so much as to affect the sense in any material degree.

رساله تحقیق الاعراب اسماء البلدان

An Essay entitled TAHKÍK AL IRÁB, ascertaining the true pronunciation of the names of places, countries, cities, villages, rivers, and mountains; with short descriptions.

THE LETTER I.

ÁTIL,¹ a river of the Dasht-i-Kibchák;² * it rises among the mountains of Bulghár,³ and flows into the Sea of Gílán.⁴

⁴ دریای کیلان; the Caspian.

* An extensive region lying northward of the Caspian Sea, and inhabited by a tribe of Eastern Turks or Tátárs, who, according to D'Herbelot, obtained the name of Cabgiak, Captchak, or Kiptchak, from their Prince Oghúz Khán, on the following occasion:—A woman far advanced in pregnancy, to avoid the horrors of a battle, in which her husband was killed, ÁCHÍN,¹ (a name equivalent in rhyme or metre to “Máchín,²) is a well-known island in the Chinese Sea,³ near to the equinoctial line.*

ÁZÁDÁN,⁴ † a village belonging to Isfahán.⁵

ÁKSU,⁶ a city of Moghulistán.⁷ ‡

دریای چین³ ————— ماچین² ————— آچین¹

آقسو⁶ ————— اصفهان⁵ ————— آزادان⁴. This name in the Turkish language signifies “white water.”

مغلستان⁷

concealed herself in a hollow tree, and there produced a son, whom Oghúz Khán named Cabgiak; which, says D’Herbelot, signifies in the Turkish language, “the bark of a tree.” This boy was adopted by the prince, and in process of time his descendants spread themselves over the great desert or plain that bears his name. (See the “Bibliothèque Orientale” in Cabgiak.)

* Mr. Hamilton, in his “East India Gazetteer,” describes Acheen as a petty state or principality, with a town of the same name, situated in the north-western extremity of the island of Sumatra.

† From Sir Wm. Ouseley’s letter, quoted in the Preface, it appears that this village (Ázádán) gave a surname to the father of Mirzá Muhammed Sádik the author.

‡ Here is inserted (in the original manuscript), between “ÁKSU” and “ÁBKHAZ,” the name “ÁK KUINLAH” (اق قوينله) which, without mention of any particular place, is described as the denomination bestowed on a Turkomán tribe, one of whose ancestors had two sons, and divided between ÁBKHÁZ,¹ a city on the confines of Gurjistán,² and the whole territory is called by the name of Ábkház.

ÁBARDAH,³ a village in the district of Tús.⁴ The *Shaikh Behá a'ddín Omar*⁵ derives the surname of Abardahi from this place.

ADDAKÁN,⁶ a village in the province of Khurásán,⁷ which gave a surname to Najem ad'dín Muhammed Addakáni.⁸

ARRÁN,⁹ a tract of country situated between the provinces of Ázerbáiján,¹⁰ Shírván,¹¹ and Arme-níah.¹² To Arrán belong the cities of Ganjah,¹³

⁴ ادكان — ⁵ شيخ بها الدين عمر ابردهي — ⁶ طوس

them his white and black sheep. From him who obtained the white sheep descended the race of Ák Kuínlah, from the other son the tribe called Kará Kuínlah (قرا قوينله), for in the Turkí (or Tátár) language, Ák (اق) signifies “white,” Kará (قرا) “black,” and Kuínlah (قوينله) “sheep.” The tribe of Ák Kuínlah are also denominated Báíandur (بايندر). This is one of the passages remarked by Sir Wm. Ouseley, in the Preface, as being not strictly geographical.

Berdá,¹ Bílkán,² Karábágh,³ Maughán,⁴ and others.

ARTÚK,⁵ a city between Otrár⁶ and Samarkand:⁷ it is called by the Moghuls “Katligh Báligh;”⁸ a name of the same signification as *Shahr mubarek*⁹ in the Persian language, implying “the blessed, or fortunate, city.”

ARHÍK,¹⁰ a considerable river in the Dasht-i-Kibchák.

ARKHANG,¹¹ a region situated eastward of Bengál: this province is likewise denominated Rakhang.¹² *

ÁRDEKÁN,¹³ a village in the territory of Shíráz;¹⁴ also the name of a place belonging to Yezd.¹⁵

ÁRDEN,¹⁶ a territory of Syria: the chief town of Arden is Tabríah.¹⁷

* ARRACAN, or REKHAING, as we learn from Mr. Hamilton, in his “East India Gazetteer,” is a maritime province of India beyond the Ganges, acquired by conquest from the Birman empire.

URDÚBÁD,¹ a town in the province of Ázerbaíján.

ARAS,² a considerable river in the province of Shírván: it rises in the mountains of Armenia, and is a fortunate or blessed stream, for, of the animals that happen to fall into it, most are saved.*

URÚS,³ a country bordering on the province of

* Sir William Ouseley describes his passage across this noble river, the Araxes, and notices many classical allusions to the ancient bridges which its impetuous current had destroyed. The words of Virgil, “pontem indignatus Araxes,” (Æneid. lib. viii. v. 728.) will immediately occur to the reader. Sir William observed the remains of some bridges over this river, which, where he crossed it, (a few miles beyond Gargar,) divides Media from Armenia; but, adds he, “I shall not here attempt to inquire, whether on or near the site of these modern structures stood the ancient bridges which ‘indignant Araxes’ was ‘compelled’ to bear, by Xerxes, Alexander, and Augustus.” And he illustrates this passage by the following note:— “Quem pontibus nixus est Xerxes conscendere; vel cui Alexander Magnus pontem fecit; quem fluminis incrementa rupe- runt; quem postea Augustus firmiore ponte ligavit.” See the Commentary of Servius on the line above cited of Virgil: to which Statius alludes, (in his Silv. lib. iv. v. 79.) “Patiens Latii jam pontis Araxes;” and Claudian, (lib. i.) “Pon- temque pati cogitur Araxes.” See Sir W. Ouseley’s Travels, Vol. iii. p. 432.

Shírván and the Dasht-i-Kibchák; it is generally thought, and indeed can scarcely be doubted, that this is the same country as Rúš.¹

ARESH,² a place in the province of Shírván.

ARGHANDÁB,³ a river between the provinces of Irák⁴ and Azerbaíján: from this river *Khwájeh Ali*⁵ derives the surname of Arghendábi.

ARMÁNIAH,⁶ ARMEN,⁷ and ARMINIAH,⁸ a celebrated and well-known country, which is divided into two portions; the Greater Armenia, and the Lesser. The Greater Armenia is considered as belonging to Irán⁹ or Persia, and in length extends from Arzenar'rúm¹⁰ to Selmás,¹¹ and in breadth from Ván¹² to the borders of Akhlát: in this division of Armenia are situated Akhlat,¹³ Alehták,¹⁴ Melázjerd,¹⁵ Ván, Vustán,¹⁶ Arjís,¹⁷ Takrít,¹⁸ and other places. The Lesser Armenia lies on the southward of Rúm, having on its west the sea of Rúm, and southward the country of Shám,¹⁹ and in this division is comprehended the Jezíreh-i-Kubrus.²⁰

¹⁶ وسان — ¹⁷ ارچيس — ¹⁸ تكريت

¹⁹ شام Syria. — ²⁰ جزيرة قبرس or the island of Cyprus.

ASTA,¹ a fortress in the province of Rustem-dár.²

ISTÁJ,³ a town or city of Rúm, from which *Adimák*⁴ *Kizlbásh*⁵ * has received his surname of Istájlú.⁶

ISTANBÚL,⁷ the city of Kostantíniah.⁸ The word Istanbúl in the Turkish language signifies, “you will find (there) whatever you wish.”⁹ †

اديباق⁴ — استاج³ — رستمدار² — استا¹
 استنبول⁷ — استاجلو⁶ — قزلباش⁵
 هرچه خواهي يابي⁹ — قسطنطنيه or Constantinople.⁸

* A Turkish compound, signifying “Red Head,” (or “Red Cap,”) the title by which certain soldiers in the Persian service were distinguished.

† A more satisfactory derivation of the name “Istanbúl” is offered in the following note, extracted from Sir Wm. Ouseley’s Travels, (Vol. iii. p. 573.) “Isnicmid is formed of the Greek name Νικομεδια, and the preposition εις: thus Sarene from εις Αρηνην. (Gell’s Itinerary of the Morea, p. 40.) We also find Isnic (εις Νικαιαν); and the venerable Athens metamorphosed into Setines (εις Αθηνας). Many other names formed by the same process might be added; but I shall only notice Istambúl or Istanbúl (استنبول), as Constantinople is now generally called; although on gold and silver coins (of 1808) it still retains most of its Greek denomination, in the word Kostantíniah (قسطنطنيه). We may trace Istanbúl with certainty (for some vague conjectures have been offered respecting this name) to Stenpolin of the modern Greeks, a corrup-

IKLÍL,⁴ a village of Syria.

ULUGHH TÁK,⁵ a place in the Dasht-i-Kibchák.

ÁLENJEK,⁶ a fortress in the province of Ázerbaíján.*

ALEHTÁK,⁷ a town of Armenia, in the territory of Míáfárekín.⁸

ALIJAH,⁹ a city of the first climate situated towards the east: at this place are mines of emerald.

tion from the words eis ten polin (eis την πολιν), signifying “to the city;” an answer commonly given to strangers inquiring the road towards Constantinople, styled, like most great capitals, “the town,” or “the city,” κατ’ ἐξοχην. But some zealous Muhammedans have, by a puerile alteration, changed Istanbúl into Islámbúl, affecting thereby to describe the city as “chief seat of their religion.” We find Islámbúl on gold coins of Ahmed III. (A. H. 1115.) and others.

* The celebrated Persian geographer, Hamdallah Mastoufi Kazvini, enumerates Alenjék among the strong castles (with Súrmári, Mughán, and others,) belonging to the territory of Nakhehuván in Armenia.

ANDAMÁNKÚH,¹ a fortress in the territory of Herát: it is also called Askilcheh.²

ANDAKHÚD,³ a territory in the province of Khurásán, on the borders of Balkh⁴ and Shuburghán.⁵

ANDULUS,⁶ a considerable region in the west, called after Andulus, the son of Ham, the son of Noah, or, as some relate, after Andulus the son of Japhet.

UJÁN,⁷ (equivalent to Dúrán,⁸) a city in the province of Ázerbaíján.*

بلخ⁴ — اندخود³ — اسكلچه² — اندمان كوه¹
 دوران⁸ — اوجان⁷ — اندلس⁶ — شبرغان⁵

* Even when Chardin visited Persia, (above a hundred and fifty years ago,) Uján was in ruins. It had once been a considerable city: near to it the celebrated French traveller saw some circles of stones, an ancient monument ascribed to the Persian giants, named Caous, &c.; and another ingenious Frenchman, Monsieur D'Hancarville, regards these circles as resembling and probably coeval with the stupendous British monument, Stonehenge. (See the "Voyages de Chardin," Tome iii. p. 13. Rouen, 1723; and D'Hancarville's "Recherches sur l'Origine et les Progrès des Arts de la Grèce," Supplem.) But Sir William Ouseley, who examined these stone inclosures, (now called Jángú, the "scene of debate," or "consultation,") found that whatever had been the original design in their construction, they had latterly been used as cemeteries. (See Sir W. Ouseley's Travels, Vol. iii. p. 397.)

UZKAND,¹ a city of Turkistán.²

UMÁN,³ a village of Hamadán.⁴

AHR,⁵ (equivalent in pronunciation to the word Shahr,⁶) is the name of a river in Ázerbáiján.

ÍRVÁN,⁷ a fortress in Armenia.

ÁIGHÚR,⁸ a tribe of Turks or Turkománs, after whom a tract of country in the fifth and sixth climate has been called the Khat Aighúri,⁹ and Belád Aighúri:¹⁰ in this region are situated Kalígh al Málígh,¹¹ Bish bálígh,¹² Khalkh,¹³ Chikil,¹⁴ Fáráb,¹⁵ and other places.

ÍLAH,¹⁶ a town on the sea-shore, at the distance of twenty farsangs from Misr.¹⁷

هدان⁴ — اومان³ — تركستان² — اوزكند¹
 شهر⁶ — اهر⁵ — ايران⁷ generally pronounced “Íraván.” See, in a subsequent page, the note respecting Chukhúr Sád, and Iraván or Erivan, as the name is frequently written. — ايغور⁸ — خط ايغوري⁹
 بيش باليغ¹² — قليغ الباليغ¹¹ — بلاد ايغوري¹⁰
 ايله¹⁶ — فاراب¹⁵ — چكل¹⁴ — خلخ¹³
¹⁷ مصر or Cairo.

BÁB AL ABUÁB,¹ a city in the province of Shír-ván, founded by Núshirván,^{2*} on the borders of the Dasht-i-Kibchák: it is called by the Moghuls “Demúr Kápi,³ which signifies the “mansion or residence of Demúr,” the man who first constructed the castle or fortress of that place.†

BÁKHARZ,⁴ a territory of Khurásán on the borders of Khwáf.⁵

BÁSHGHAR,⁶ and BÁSHGARET,⁷ a country of the seventh climate between Constantinople and Bulghár: its inhabitants for the greater number are Christians.

BÁLÍGH:⁸ so the Turks call “a city;” but this name is composed of Báí,⁹ signifying a wealthy person, and Lígh,¹⁰ a place of residence; so the compound word expresses the abode of rich or opulent persons.

⁴ باخرز ————— ⁵ خواف ————— ⁶ باشغر ————— ⁷ باشغرت

⁸ بالیغ ————— ⁹ باي ————— ¹⁰ لیغ

* A celebrated Persian king of the Sassanian dynasty, who reigned in the sixth century.

† Of this name (Demúr Kápi), the proper signification in Turkish is the “iron gate.”

BĀNDHÚ,¹ a territory of Hindustán,² on the south of Alehábád.³ *

BUHMID,⁴ † a city of Shám (or Syria), near to Berút.⁵

BERÁVISHTÁN,⁶ a village of Kum:⁷ from this place *Majd al Mulk*⁸ derives the surname of Berávishtáni Kúmi.⁹

BARDSÍR,¹⁰ a city in the province of Kirmán:¹¹ it is also called Kaváshír.¹²

BURSÁ,¹³ a celebrated city in the province of Rúm.

* Under the article “BAND,” Mr. Hamilton, in his “East India Gazetteer,” notices two places so called in the province of Allahabád.

† In the original manuscript, between the names of “BANDHÚ” and “BUHMID,” we find the word “BÁIANDUR” (بایندر) of the same signification as Āk Kúnlah (before noticed in p. 2.) and applied to the “tribe of the white sheep.” The denomination of Báiandur they derived from Báiandur Khán, the son of Gúzkhán, the son of Aghúz Khán (بایندر خان بن). But this article does not furnish any geographical information; and the tribes of Turkománs wander even to the most southern part of Persia.

BIRKAH GHÚRIÁN,¹ a place in Moghulistán.

BURTÁS,² a country bordering on the Dasht-i-Khazar.³ From this name the derivative is Burtási.

BURNÍU,⁴ an island in the east.

BAGLÁNAH,⁵ a country situated between Dekkan,⁶ Gujerát,⁷ and Khándís.⁸

BALÁSÁGHÚN,⁹ a considerable city of Turkistán ; called by the Moghuls Kúbáligh,¹⁰ a name signifying “ the beautiful city.”

Sir W. Ouseley did not know, when he visited this place, that the gold and silver coins struck there exhibited the words “Chukhúr Saad.” A riál, or piece of silver money which afterwards fell into his hands at Amásiah, mentions in the inscription that it had been coined at the “Chukhúr Saad, Iraván,” in the year (of the Muhammedan era) 1225, (corresponding to 1810 of Christ). ضرب چخور سعد ایروان ۱۲۲۵
 “I learned,” says Sir William, “that in the Turkí language Chukhúr signified a place of abode, (perhaps also of sepulture,) and that Saad was the name of some distinguished personage.” (“Travels,” Vol. iii. p. 442.) A quotation however, which Sir William adds from the MS. Chronicle Áalum Árái, seems to indicate some distinction between Iraván and Chukhúr Saad: he thinks it possible that Iraván was a name originally and peculiarly applied to the fortress, and Chukhúr Saad to the adjoining territory.

CHÍN,¹ a celebrated country of the East, named after Chín the son of Japhet, son of Noah, on whom be the blessing of God! The Moghúls² call the capital of that region Mahri.³

* Here after the article “KHAZAR” we find in the manuscript “KHISRAU” (خِسْرَو) for so the word is erroneously accented), being the name of Khusrau (from which the Greeks formed Chosroes). This name, says our author, signifies in the Deri language (or old Persian dialect) a king; and the Arabs express it by كَسْرِي. But in this article there is not any geographical reference.

KHATTA,¹ a village in an island of the Bahr-i-Fárs,² near to Yemámeh :³ from this place the spears called Nízeh Khatti⁴ derive their name.

KHITÁ,⁵ (the Arabs spell this name with t ط and the Persians with t ت) a great region in the East, the capital of which at present is Khánbáligh.⁶ The last place of this country in the direction of Máwerelnahr is Sakával; and from Samarkand to Sakával⁷ is a distance of one hundred and one manzils (or days' stages), in the following order: from Samarkand to Káshghar⁸ twenty-five stages; from Káshghar to Khoten⁹ fifteen; from Khoten to Karákhuájeh¹⁰ thirty-five; and from Karákhuájeh to Sakával, thirty-one.

KHÚZISTÁN,¹¹ a celebrated region, between the provinces of Fárs and Írák Árab: its capital in ancient times was Ahwáz;¹² but at present Shushter¹³ is the chief city. To this province belong Askermokrem,¹⁴ Rámhormuz,¹⁵ Arján,¹⁶ Jondishápúr,¹⁷ Havízeh,¹⁸ Dizh-e-fúl,¹⁹ and other towns;

DASHT (OR DESHT),¹ a district in the territory of KÁÍN :² it is also called Dasht-i-Biáz³ (the white plain or desert).

DAMÁVAND,⁴ a mountain eastward of Rai : the original name of this mountain was Duniá ávand,⁵ signifying "the vase or bottle of the world." It is said to be in height four farsangs, and the highest mountain in the world : on the summit is a level piece of ground, from which emanates a shining light ; by the brightness of this at night a person is enabled to see the country to a considerable extent ; and in the day-time smoke issues from this spot. It is related that King Solomon (on whom be the blessing of God !) imprisoned there the Jin or Demon Sakhreh.⁶ This mountain comprises several inhabited places, constituting what is called Damávand ; the chief town among these being Dímeħ.⁷

* Here our author, Sádik Isfaháni, has brought down Khúzistán (or Susiana) too much towards the south, confounding it with the adjoining province of Fárs (or Persis). Sir W. Ouseley quotes this passage in the First Volume of his Travels (p. 206), and seems inclined to suppose that the error originated with some transcriber of the author's MS. He also describes Ríshahr as a place totally ruined; but which in former ages had been extensive, well-peopled, and considered as the bander (بندر) or principal sea-port in the province of Fárs. To this rank has succeeded Abú Shahr (ابو شهر), a town situated within three or four miles.

SEJÁVEND,¹ (the Arabic manner of writing the Persian name Segávend,²) a village in the territory of Ghaznín ;³ also a place in Kháf.⁴

SAKHÁ,⁵ a city in the Sâid⁶ of Egypt ; which gives a surname to the author of a book entitled “ Zil léliddúl,”⁷ a work on universal history, or “ Chronicle of the world ” (Tarikh e Áálum⁸).

* Soonergong, or Sunnergaum, is now dwindled to a village ; but was, before the building of Dacca, the provincial capital of the eastern division of Bengál, as we learn from Major Rennell in his “ Memoir of a Map of Hindoostan,” p. 57. He adds, that it is situated on a branch of the river Burrampooter, about thirteen miles south-east from Dacca ; and was famous for a manufactory of fine cotton cloths. (ibid.) That “ Soonergong ” was originally called “ Suvarna grama,” or “ the golden village,” Mr. Hamilton informs us in his “ East India Gazetteer,” and that it has some pretensions to this name or title appears from the quantity of gold produced in its immediate vicinity. The writer of this note has lately seen a very handsome watch-chain, made by native artists of Tellicherry from pure gold found at Soonergong, in the presence of Thomas Hervey Baber, Esq., about four years ago ; and the watch-chain is now in Mr. Baber’s possession.

* Or “the residence of the Tokhár tribe;” once a considerable nation, according to Ptolemy, (Geogr. lib. vi. cap. 7.) Ὑπο δε τους Ζαρταςτας, ΤΟΧΑΡΟΙ, μεγα εθνος. That most excellent geographer, Major Rennell, seems inclined to think that Ptolemy has placed this tribe too low, and that the Jaxartes may have been its original seat. “It is worthy of remark,” adds he, “that two tribes of the names of Taochari and Pasiani are now seated near the Araxes in Armenia; the first answering to the Taochi of Xenophon, the other probably giving its name to the Araxes; as Xenophon calls it Phasis; so that they seem to have penetrated southward on both sides of the Caspian.”—See his observations on the Eastern Scythians, or Massagetæ, in the “Geography of Herodotus,” p. 227. (Quarto Edition.) But this remark, however ingenious, could scarcely induce an etymologist conversant in Eastern languages to regard the tribe of Tokhár (طخار) Ptolemy’s Tocharoi above mentioned) as the same with Xenophon’s Taochi (Taochoi, Anabas. lib. iv.).

* It appears from a letter of Sir William Ouseley (quoted in the Preface) that Sádik Isfaháni, like most of the older Persian geographers, reckoned the degrees of longitude (از جزایر خالادات) “from the Fortunate Islands,” and of latitude (از خط استوا) “from the equinoctial line.”

* The original manuscript does not give any description of Ákserái, but Nasír Túsi places it in long. 68-0, lat. 38-0. (See Hudson's "Geogr. Script. Minores," vol. iii. p. 94.) The name, in Turkish, signifies the "white palace, or mansion." Sádik Isfaháni has already mentioned it as a town of Karamán.—("Tahkík al Iráb," p. 39.)

The celebrated geographer Hamdallah Mastowfi, (in his "Nuzahat-al-Kulúb,") and Zakaríá Kazvíni, (in his "Seir al Belád,") place this city in Fárs; but more modern writers assign it to the adjoining province of Irák Âjem: thus Emín Rázi (in his "Haft aklím") informs us that "Aberkúh formerly was reckoned as a town of Fárs, but now belongs to Irák :"

ابرقوه—سابق داخل فارس بوده و الحال تعلق بعراق دارد and the "Burbán-i-Káteâ" describes it as a town of Irák Âjem. We learn from different accounts that the original city had been constructed on the summit of a hill, and therefore called "Aber-Kúh," (or "Ber Kúh,") a name expressing its situation, and this name is still retained, and applied to the modern town, which, the old one having been ruined, was built on a plain not far from the hill. Áberkúh appears in ancient romances as the scene of many remarkable and interesting events. Not long ago was shown, (and probably still exists,) near this place, a considerable mound or heap, which, according to local tradition, consists of ashes, and indicates the spot where young prince Síavesh, in consequence of a false accusation made by the queen, his enamoured and disappointed stepmother, was obliged to pass through a blazing pile of wood, and proved his innocence by undergoing the fiery ordeal without injury. This circumstance is a favourite subject with the painters, who illuminate fine manuscript copies of Firdausi's great heroic poem, the “*Sháh Náme*h.”

ADDITIONAL NOTES,

P. 16. The name of Halákú is sometimes written Hulákú and (but improperly) Holagu, or Holagou. This great Moghul emperor and conqueror was the grandson of Changíz Khán, and died about the year (of our era) 1264, or 1265.

P. 25. Dár el Marz. In ancient times the warlike chiefs of Mazinderán and other Hyrcanian provinces were styled Marzebán, or “lords of the marches,” and bravely defended their country against the Persian invaders. Some of those chiefs, pre-eminent in fierceness and strength, were called by their enemies “Demons,” or “Giants” (Dív): such as the Dív-i-Sefíd (دیو سفید), the “White Giant;” Dív-i-Surkh (دیو سرخ), the “Red Demon,” &c. This we learn from Sir W. Ouseley’s Travels, vol. iii. p. 238; and in the same work (p. 570.) is the following note:—“Marzebán (مرزبان), ‘a lord of the marches:’ this, with many other Persian words, may be found in the Talmud (cap. i. Megillæ), thus expressed in Hebrew letters, מרזבני (Marzbeni), signifying, says the learned Reland, (Dissert. ix.) ‘præfectum provinciæ vel regioni in finibus imperii sitæ.’ (See also Castelli Lexic. col. 3557.) The Persian term is compounded of marz (مرز), the ‘boundary, or border of a country;’ and bán (بان), a ‘keeper or guardian,’ which we see added in the same sense to form bágh-bán (باغبان), a 'gardener,' &c. Marz is also written Marj (مرج), resembling both in sense and sound our English word marches,—the borders, limits, or confines of a country. With this signification, Dr. Johnson does not allow the singular march: yet I find it thus used in Holinshed's old chronicle (Hist. of Scotland, p. 255. edit. of 1577): 'In the midst of Stanemore there shall be a crosse set up, with the King of England's image on the one side, and the King of Scotland's on the other, to signifie that the one is marche to England, and the other to Scotland.'" To this quotation from Sir W. Ouseley's work may be added, on his authority, that Gibbon does not hesitate to use march in the singular; for he says (speaking of Charlemagne): "In his absence he instituted the Spanish march, which extended from the Pyrenees to the river Ebro;" and in a note on this passage, "The governors or counts of the Spanish march," &c. (Rom. Emp. ch. xlix. note 108.)

P. 29. In this page should have appeared (as the first name beginning with س) SÁTIDEMÁ and the annexed description. This article having been copied from the MS. by the translator, (who wished to consult a friend respecting some obscurity in the last line,) and accidentally mislaid, the omission was not discovered in time for the insertion of "Sátidemá" in its proper place. The whole passage is here laid before the reader:—

ساتیدما—کوهی است متصل ببحر روم مقاتله نوشیروان و قیصر
روم اینجا اتفاق افتاده و اکثر ملوک ایرانرا با رومیان همانجا قتال
دست داده لاجرم انرا ساتی دما خوانند یعنی زود باش که خون بیارم

"SÁTIDEMÁ is a mountain contiguous to the sea of Róm.

The battle between Núshírván and the Kaiser of Rúm happened at this place, where also were fought most of the battles of Persian kings with the Rúmiáns; and therefore (on account of the great slaughter) this place is called ‘Sátidemá;’ that is to say, (being interpreted in Persian,) ‘Zúd básh, keh khún bíárem.’” One MS. for básh reads باشد báshed; but whatever may be the allusion to blood, it is evident that the Arabic name has not been literally explained in the Persian sentence.

P. 43. To the note on Gong-i-Dizh كنگد (or Gong-i-Diz كنگد) we may add that the name appears strangely disguised, as Cancadora (كنكدرة) in the printed Tables of Nasír ad’dín Túsi, who places it in long. 180. (See Hudson’s Minor Geographers, vol. iii. p. 115.)

P. 50. Nibtish. This extraordinary name for the Euxine was probably formed through mistakes of successive copyists, and a transposition of the two first letters, from بنطس Bontus, as the Arabs, who do not use the letter P, would write Pontus.

P. 116. Gharjistán (غرچستان), perhaps more correctly Gharchistán (غرچستان), for in that admirable work, the “Nuzahat al Kulúb” (ch. xvii.) we find Gharcheh, thus described by Hamdallah Kazvini among the places belonging to Khurásán:—

غرچه—از اقلیم چهارم است طولش از جزایر خالدا ت ص ٥
و عرض از خط استوا لوم ولایتی است قریب پنجاه پاره ده از
توابع آن و هوا و مردم آنجا مانند ولایت غور

“ Gharcheh is a territory of the fourth climate, its longitude from the Fortunate Islands being 99 0, and its latitude from the Equinoctial Line 36 40. Among the dependencies of this territory are about fifty villages, and in climate and inhabitants it resembles the country of Ghúr.”

P. 116. Ghaznah (غَزْنَه). The name of this city is also written Ghaznav (غَزْنَو), Ghazni (غَزْنِي), and Ghaznín (غَزْنِيْن), as we learn from the Dictionary “Burhán-i-Káteá,” which informs us that it once contained a thousand colleges or schools (هزار مدرسه).

INTRODUCTION.

THE Persian work, of which a translation is here offered, was, with other Eastern manuscripts, brought from India many years ago by an English gentleman, and presented to Sir William Ouseley, through whose kindness it has been communicated to me. Having lately availed myself of Sir William's permission to publish an extract from his letter as a Preface to the Translation of SÁDIK ISFAHÁNI'S "Geographical Works," I shall here, by the same authority, quote his words, containing a short account of the manuscript which has afforded materials for this publication:—

"The little work which I have now much “ pleasure in transmitting to you, was brought “ from Calcutta almost forty years ago, by “ my ingenious and worthy friend the late “ Dr. Jonathan Scott, who gave it to me a “ short time before his death as a very “ curious and useful tract, probably unique “ even in India. He understood that the “ author, a learned Bengáli, had composed it “ for the use of his son, or some pupil, whose “ taste in historical researches he wished to “ direct, by indicating the Tárikhs or Chro“ nicles most worthy of his perusal.

“ Notwithstanding the recommendation of “ Dr. Scott, (than whom there could not be a “ more competent judge,) this manuscript
“ lay, during some years, neglected, upon “ my shelf; for, being described on the out“ side cover as ‘A list of Arabic and Persian “ books chiefly on Indian history,’ I did not “ expect that it would furnish much matter
“ very interesting to one who already pos“ sessed, and had attentively examined, nearly “ fifty Catalogues of Oriental Manuscripts “ preserved in public and private libraries.
“ But having resolved last year to compile
“ an account of my own collection, I found

“ it necessary to seek in this little tract some “ information respecting certain books and “ authors not particularly noticed, or not “ mentioned, in any of those other cata“ logues, even the most extensive.

“ I am now induced, by the successful “ result of my search, to recommend this “ little Essay, as one which in a peculiar “ manner seems adapted to the objects of “ our Oriental Translation Committee ; and “ if any circumstances had prevented you
 “ from undertaking such a task, I should, “ myself, have immediately translated the “ manuscript.

“ Of the author it is not in my power to “ give you a more full account than that al“ ready stated : his name does not appear, nor “ has he decorated his little work with any “ pompous or flowery title, (like so many of “ those which he enumerates,) but simply “ concludes by informing us that his tract or “ essay (dated in 1748) is finished (تمت الرسالة).

“ Although some European libraries con“ tain several of the manuscripts mentioned “ in this tract, yet the printed Catalogues in “ general afford little more than the title of “ a book, sometimes adding the author’s

 “ name, but seldom any satisfactory notice
 “ of the contents, or any remark concerning
 “ the reputation, the style, the excellence, or “ defects of a work. On many occasions the “ inquisitive reader is much disappointed, “ even by HÁJI KHALÍFAH himself, the “ great Turkish bibliographer, whose notices
 “ are sometimes extremely short and meagre;
 “ and the same charge may be brought “ against D’Herbelot, who has inserted in “ his ‘Bibliothèque Orientale’ a considerable “ portion of HÁJI KHALÍFAH’S ‘Kashf al “ Zunún.*

* On the subject of this most valuable work (containing notices of many thousand Arabic, Persian, and Turkish books) I shall here quote a passage from Baron Ienisch’s “Commentatio de Fatis Linguarum Orientalium,” p. lxxxiii., which thus mentions HÁJI KHALÍFAH, or, as his fellow-countrymen, the Turks, generally call him, KÁTIB CHELEBÍ (كاتب چلبی)— “ qui in opere suo كشف الظنون عن اسامي الكتب و الفنون
Detectio cognitionum de nominibus librorum et scientiarum inscripto, quemadmodum in adjecta auctoris hujus vita ad tabulas suas chronologicas Constantinopoli typis datas Ibrahim Efendi memorat, libros omnes quotquot præfato auctori Katib inspicere licuit, ex tercentis et amplius scientiis in ordinem alphabeticum redactos recensuit.” We learn from Mr. Mitchell,

“ It must however be allowed, that if many “ Catalogues are deficient in information on “ the subject of certain manuscripts, some “ few may be found that, with respect to the “ works which they describe, exhibit much “ accuracy in dates, and afford very useful “ statements of the principal contents, and,
 “ in some instances, curious or entertaining “ extracts—as the Catalogues composed by “ Pococke, Casiri, Assemani, Stewart, Ha-“ maker, and two or three others, will suffi“ ciently prove.

in the preface to his excellent translation of HÁJI KHALÍFAH'S “ History of the Maritime Wars of the Turks,” (lately published by the Oriental Translation Fund,) that the Turkish author's name was, at length, مصطفى بن عبد الله حاجي خليفة, MUSTAFA BEN ABDULLAH HÁJI KHALÍFAH, and that he died at Constantinople in the year of the hejrah 1068 (of the Christian era 1657). It will gratify the Orientalists of Europe to know, that a translation of his bibliographical work (the “ Kashf al Zunún ” above mentioned) has been undertaken for the Oriental Translation Committee, as the following notice in a printed list will show :—“ Hájí Khalífah's Bibliographical “ Dictionary ; translated by Monsieur Gustave Flugel. This “ valuable Arabic work, which formed the groundwork of “ D'Herbelot's ‘ Bibliothèque Orientale,’ contains accounts
 “ of upwards of thirteen thousand Arabic, Persian, and Turk“ ish works, arranged alphabetically.”

“ Of this Persian work, which I now con“ sign to you, the chief merit consists in two “ circumstances — it directs our notice to “ historical manuscripts but little known,
“ perhaps not existing, in Europe; of some,
“ indeed, the author himself informs us that “ he had never been able to procure a copy.

“ The other circumstance which particu“ larly recommends this tract is, that it offers “ remarks on the style of different writers;
“ and, as a descriptive Catalogue, may be “ considered almost singular in not only
“ praising excellencies, but censuring defects.

“ I therefore should not hesitate to am“ plify the title superscribed on its cover by “ Dr. Scott, as above mentioned, and to style
“ it, ‘ A Critical Essay on various Manuscript “ Works, Arabic and Persian, illustrating
“ the History of Arabia, Persia, Turkomania “ and India, Syria, Egypt, Mauritania, and “ Spain;’ for such is its extensive range,
“ comprehending, in fact, all those regions
“ which are or have been subject to Muselmán
“ sovereigns.

“ Your continued residence at a most in“ convenient distance from London induces

“ me to renew my offer of assistance (as on a former occasion) in conducting this Essay through the press ; and

“ I am, my dear Sir, yours, &c.

“ London, February 10th, 1832.

In addition to the obliging offer of assistance contained in his letter above quoted, Sir William has kindly undertaken to annex a few notes, as the pages of this work pass, under his correction, through the press ; and I have adopted the title recommended by him, since it expresses the author's object better than any that could be suggested by myself.

In representing by means of our letters the Arabic and Persian names which occur throughout the following pages, I have observed the system adopted in the Geographical Work of SÁDIK ISFAHÁNI : this is the system suggested by Sir William Jones,¹ and recommended by the Oriental Translation Committee, according to which “the letter á (having an accent above) is used to express the broad or long sound of our a in fall, call; and as Ámul, Shíráz. The letter í, accented in the same manner, represents the sound of our ee in peer, feel, and as in Shíráz above mentioned: and ú, likewise accented, denotes the sound of our oo in boot, moon, &c.; thus in Kúfah. Without accents those letters (a, i, and u,) have their short sounds: a, as in man, battle; thus Kazvín, Tabri, Marv, &c.: i in imp, as Isfahán, Mirbát: u, as in bull, full, &c.; thus Suhrvard, Dábul; but in Persian words the u is never pronounced like our u in pun, mutter, &c. Although the short a may be the proper symbol, the short e, as Sir William Jones remarks in his work above quoted, may “be often very conveniently used” to express the first vocal sound; and in the word America (with which he exemplifies his remark) we find both the short a and e: thus he writes chashm (چشم), raft (رفت), ber (بر), perveresh (پرزرش), &c.¹

¹ See the Preface to SÁDIK ISFAHÁNI'S “Geographical Works,” p. xii. It may be here remarked, that for the letter

The names of authors and titles of Manuscripts will be found, wherever they first occur, printed in their proper Arabic or Persian characters; and as those names and titles are crowded together in the text, without any respect for alphabetical arrangement, an Index seemed necessary. One is therefore subjoined, which comprehends the names and titles of kings or eminent persons with those of authors; another is an Index of books; and one has likewise been added, showing the names of countries, cities, and rivers, mentioned in the course of this work, and of the notes with which it is illustrated. Each Index I have endeavoured to compile with accuracy, and hope that all may prove useful.

ON

VARIOUS MANUSCRIPT WORKS,

ARABIC AND PERSIAN, &c.

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِیْمِ

In the name of God, the clement, the merciful!

AFTER all due praises to GOD, and benedictions on his holy Prophet, be it known to those who delight in historical researches, and therefore seek information respecting the most useful and excellent chronicles, that they must not expect to find any single work comprising such ample and detailed accounts of all the successive dynasties of kings and princes, who have reigned in different countries, as would render unnecessary the inspection of other records; because, if any ingenious writer who undertook a general compilation of that extensive nature had accomplished his design, the work would have amounted to a hundred volumes of considerable size, or even to a greater number.

Thus the author of that celebrated chronicle entitled the “Habib al Siyar,”¹ whose object was

¹ حبيب السير Of this work the author was KHONDEMÍR (or, more literally, KHÁVEND EMÍR خاوند امير) the son of MÍRKHOND, respecting whose name some remarks shall be offered in another note. It has been usual among European writers to express the title of this work by Habib al Seir, as D’Herbelot styles it in his Bibliothèque Orientale, translating those Arabic words “l’Ami du Voyage ;” and he adds, “c’est ce que nous appellons dans l’usage du vulgaire un Veni mecum :” some English Orientalists also have entitled it Habib al Sír, or the “Friend of Travellers.” But, on the authority of two learned Orientalists, Mr. Von Hammer and the Baron de Sacy, as well as of native Asiatics, it may be here observed that Siyar represents more properly the word سِير, than Seir or Sír in this title, for Siyar appears to be the plural of سيرة “a particular life, or biography,” and rhymes with the word bashar بشر according to an affectation frequent among Eastern authors. This is confirmed by the full title—

حبيب السير في اخبار افراد البشر

Habib al Siyar,

Fí akhbár efrád al bashar—

signifying, “The Friend of Biographies, comprising the history of persons distinguished among men.” In this title there is also a play on the first word, alluding to a great personage a comprehensive and general compilation, has treated but superficially, and in the manner of an abridgment, concerning many royal dynasties; and of some kings, more particularly those who reigned in *Maghreb*² (or the north-western parts of Africa) and in Hind,³ or India, he has not made named HABÍB ALLAH, at whose request KHONDEMÍR composed his work in the year of the hejrah (or Muhammedan era) 927 (of Christ, 1521). — See the “ Notice de l’Histoire Universelle de Mirkhond,” by M. Am. Jourdain, in the ninth volume of “ Extraits et Notices des Manuscrits de la Bibliot. Imperial, &c. Paris, 1812, p. 163.

² مغرب The West, in a general sense, but here implying more particularly the countries which form what we call Barbary and Mauritania, occupied by Muselmáns. A very curious Map, illustrating that rare and ancient Work, the “ Súr al buldan,” (صور البلدان) described in the Catalogue of Sir William Ouseley’s Oriental MSS., No. 709,) divides Africa into the Belád al Maghreb, (بلاد المغرب) the North-Western (or Muhammedan) territories above mentioned, and the Belad al Sudán, (بلاد السودان) or “ Country of the Blacks,” lying towards the South. We learn from D’Herbelot, that, among the Arabs, this word (Maghreb) is used to express not only all that space of country which they conquered in this part of the world, that is, Africa, from the western borders of Egypt to the Atlantic Ocean, but even Spain, with those Islands of the Mediterranean that are situated between Candia and the Strait of Gibraltar.

³ هند or Hindústán (هندوستان) as the author in some places denominates India.

any mention. Notwithstanding this omission, his work (the “Habíb al Siyar”) fills three very bulky volumes.

Neither has the excellent author of the “Rauzet al Safá,”⁴ however extensive and voluminous

⁴ روضة الصفا The “Garden of Purity,” by Mirkhond, (as we generally abridge Mír Khávend ميرخاوند) a part of this celebrated author’s full name, which was Muhammed ben Khávend Sháh ben Mahmoud (محمد بن خاوند شا بن محمود). We sometimes find it written Muhammed Mír Khávend Sháh (محمد مير خاوند شاه) or Emír Khávend Sháh (امير خاوند شاه). The Rauzét al Safá or, “Garden of Purity,” which Casiri, in his Catalogue of the Escorial MSS. (vol. ii. p. 68) styles “The Garden of Delights,” (Hortus Deliciarum,) consists of seven jild (جلد) or portions, each forming a volume, besides the Khátémáh (خاتمه) or Appendix. Sir W. Ouseley, in the Catalogue of his Oriental MSS., thus notices the Rauzét al Safá—“a celebrated work of Emír Khávend, generally called Mirkhond. The seven parts and the geographical appendix (so seldom found) are comprised in seven volumes folio (the fourth and fifth parts being bound together), all in the original magnificent and uniform binding. The value of this work is well known to Orientalists; odd volumes of it are preserved in many collections, but few possess the complete series of seven parts with the appendix.” It may be here added that Mirkhond died in the month Dhúl Kaadah of the (Muhammedan) year 903, (corresponding to June, 1498, of the Christian era) aged sixty-six years. This appears from a passage in the Habíb al Siyar of his son, Khondemír quoted this chronicle, perfectly executed the design of such a general compilation, as would afford satisfaction by minute details of all the dynasties; for in his accounts of some he is diffuse and prolix, while of others he furnishes a mere compendium or summary.

Thus, of the BENI OMMIAH⁵ he treats very by M. Am. Jourdain ("Notices et Extraits des MSS." &c. tome ix. p. 6).

⁵ بني أمية The sons or descendants of OMMIAH, a considerable personage among the Arabs: he was the son of ABD AL SHAMS عبد الشمس. The Ommiah family possessed the supreme government or Khálifat during ninety-one, or, according to some historians, a hundred years; that is, from the year 32 to 132 of the Muselman era (or of the Christian era from 652 to 749). D'Herbelot enumerates the fourteen Khalifahs or sovereigns of the family, which would have been totally exterminated by the BENI ABBÁS or ABBASIDES, had not ABDAR'RAHMAN BEN MOAVÍAH preserved it in Spain, where he began to reign in the year 139 of the hejrah (or of our era 756) and the Ommiah dynasty continued in that country until the year 424 (or of Christ 1032). See the "Bibliothèque Orientale" of D'Herbelot (in the article Ommiah), and a detailed account of this dynasty in Major Price's most excellent work, the "Retrospect of Mohammedan History." The Tárikh or Chronicle of the Khalifahs (تاريخ الخلفاء) composed in Arabic by ASSIÚTI (السيوطي) gives a history of the Ommiah who reigned in Spain.

fully, and to some eminent personages of the BENI ABBÁS⁶ family he devotes a considerable portion of his chronicle, while others he notices but slightly.

The great sovereigns of Irán and *Túrán*⁷ (Per-

⁶ بني عباس We learn from D'Herbelot, that of this dynasty (which he denominates the ABBASSIDES) thirty-seven KHALÍFAHS reigned during a space of 523 years, from the year of the hejrah 132 until the year 656 (or from 749 of the Christian era to 1258). The Abbassides proved so prolific, that under the Khalífat of MÁMÚN (A. H. 200, of Christ 815) the number of males and females of this family amounted to thirty-three thousand persons. D'Herbelot gives a list of the thirty-seven ABBASSIDE Sovereigns; see the "Bibliotheque Orientale," in Abbassides, and Major Price's "Retrospect of Mohammedan History," quoted in the preceding note.

⁷ ایران و توران Under this name (Irán), says the learned De Sacy, Eastern writers comprehend all that extent of country which is included within the River Euphrates and the Persian Gulf, the River Jaihún (or Oxus) and the River Indus, whilst they express by the name of Túrán all that part of Asia which lies beyond the River Jaihún. (See the "Memoires sur diverses Antiquités de la Perse," &c. p. 52.) Thus the word Túrán implied Scythia, Transoxiana, Turkomania, the country of Tátárs (or, as we call it, Tartary), &c. It appears from various Pahlavi inscriptions deciphered by M. de Sacy, (see the work above quoted,) and by Sir W. Ouseley, in his "Observations on Medals and Gems bearing Pahlavi Inscriptions" that during two or three centuries the reigning Sassanian monarch of Persia styled himself "King of the Kings of sia and Turkomania) chiefly occupy his pages ; but the Arabian, Egyptian, and Syrian⁸ monarchs have been wholly rejected by his pen ; even the petty or minor kings of Persia he has omitted.⁹

In the same respect, other compilations of general history are liable to the charge of deficiency or omission, which must be supplied or corrected from the examination of different works relating distinctly to particular dynasties.

Originally the learned men of *Maghreb*¹⁰ and *Andalus*¹¹ (Africa and Spain) employed great skill

We learn from some remarks prefixed by the editor to "Burckhardt's Travels in Arabia," that certain Eastern writers divide Arabia into two parts, Yemen and Hejáz; others into five great provinces, Yemen, Hejáz, Nejed, Tehama, and Yemama; but the three last mentioned, however extensive, are often regarded as portions of Hejáz, which comprises those territories considered by Muselmáns as sacred, the cities of Mekkah and Medínah, &c. But this name (Hejáz) is not used by the Arabian Bedouins in the usual acceptation of the word; they call Hejáz exclusively the mountainous country comprehending many fertile valleys south of Tayf, &c. (See "Burckhardt's Travels in Arabia," Pref., pp. viii, ix, x.) By some writers Hejáz is identified with Arabia Petraea or the Stony; by others confounded with Arabia Deserta.

The prince, whose memoirs are the chief subject of this work, was ABDALLAH KHÁN, contemporary of the renowned AKBER, Emperor of Hindústán, with whom he kept up a constant correspondence and interchange of embassies, and died A. rical works that we possess, are generally restricted in their subjects to a few important transactions, and are written with little attention to chronological accuracy respecting the dates of years or months in which those transactions occurred.

But after the bright sun of prosperity, that never sets, had risen in India under the domination of the imperial descendants of his Majesty the SÁHIB KERÁN,²⁶ the conqueror of the world, EMÍR TAIMÚR GÚRKÁN,²⁷ many very excellent books have been written on historical subjects.

²⁶ صاحب قران "The Lord of the grand conjunction of the planets," in which, says D'Herbelot, "the astronomers pretend that the foundations of the chief empires have been formed." This title may also imply "Lord of the extreme quarters of the world," the word kern here signifying a horn or extremity; thus Alexander the Great was surnamed DHUL'KARNEIN—"Lord of the two horns" of the world, the East and West. See the "Bibliotheque Orientale," in Saheb Keran.

²⁷ حضرت صاحب قران كيتي ستان امير تيمور كوركان
The death of this great conqueror happened in the year 807 of the Muselmán era (or of Christ 1405). To his name TIMOUR, TAIMÚR, or TAIMÚR, was often added the epithet lang لنگ signifying "lame" or "deformed," and alluding to some personal defect or infirmity: hence the strange title of Tamerlane, which many European writers have bestowed on him. (See the "Geogr. Works of Sádik Isfaháni," p. 19. note.)—

In the time of his Majesty the Emperor JELÁL ADDÍN MUHAMMED AKBER PÁDSHÁH,²⁸ whose residence is now in Paradise, the events which happened during the reigns of those illustrious princes (the descendants of EMÍR TAIMÚR) were circumstantially and minutely recorded; and the “Akber NámeH,”²⁹ the “Jehángír NámeH,”³⁰ and the “Padshah NámeH,”³¹ were compiled from the journals and commentaries of those departed monarchs.

Since that time until the present day, an interval of nearly one hundred years, the want of curiosity in the sovereigns and nobles of this country and their indifference respecting history

TAIMÚR, at the time of his death, was sixty years old; and the surname of lang was given to him, “parcequ'en effet ce prince étoit estropié de la main et du pied droit. Langlès's “Instituts Politiques et Militaires de TAMERLAN, proprement appellé TIMOUR,” p. 34. A portrait, extremely curious, and said to be original, is in the collection of the Right Hon. Sir Gore Ouseley.

Now the titles of some extensive historical works of a general nature shall be offered to the reader; among them I must first mention compositions in the Arabic language. One is the “Táríkh Kebír,”³² or “Great Chronicle” of MAHOMMED IBN JARÍR TABRÍ, ³³ comprising the history of most regions in which Islám (اسلام) or the Muselmán religion) is professed, down to the year ³² تاریخ کبیر This work, from the author's different names, below mentioned, is sometimes quoted by Eastern writers as the “Táríkh Jaaferi” (تاریخ جعفری), or the “Táríkh Ebn Jarír (تاریخ ابن جریر).

³³ محمد ابن جریر طبری Of this eminent historian we have the following account in a note annexed to Pococke's “Specimen Historiæ Arabum” (p. 383, Oxon. 1650). “Al Tabarita—Abu Jaafar Mohammed Ebn Jarir al Tabari” Ille toties in Historia Sarcenica laudatus. of the Hejrah 300.³⁴ But this admirable work, in the original Arabic, is so extremely rare that the humble author of this tract has never, to the present hour, seen more than two volumes of it; and if a reasonable judgment may be formed from the contents of these two portions, it is evident that the whole work must have occupied at least twenty volumes.³⁵ TABARI, “ the venerable author, was born in the year of Christ 838: “ his work contains the ancient traditions of the Jews, Per- “ sians, and Arabians—the history of the Patriarchs, Pro- “ phets, and Kings; and as it is supposed that the original in “ Arabic complete does not exist, this fragment may be con- “ sidered a literary treasure. The learned Ockley, in his “ ‘ History of the Saracens,’ styles TABARI the Livy of the “ Arabians, the very parent of their history, and congratulates “ himself on having found a folio fragment of his Chronicle “ among Archbishop Laud’s MSS. Fortunately, however, “ this work is preserved in the Persian and Turkish transla- “ tions: the former, made within a few years after the author’s “ death, is enriched with many curious additions by the learned “ translator, particularly on the subject of Persian history and “ antiquities. From the latter part of TABARI’s Chronicle “ ELMAKÍN compiled his ‘ History of the Saracens,’ pub- “ lished by ERPENIUS; and it would appear that this volume “ once belonged to that celebrated Orientalist, from the fol- “ lowing note written at the beginning of the MS.—‘ Continet “ hoc volumen historiam propheticam a Sjuabio, (qui vixit “ tempore Jacobi,) Patriarchæ ipsoque Jacobo ad tempora “ usque Muhammedis Abulcasimi pseudoprophetæ Arabum, “ estque tomus secundus celeberrimi apud Orientales historici “ Muhammedis ABUJOAFARIS, qui floruit circa annum Christi “ 800, et in Oriente Arabicè existimatur periisse, et Persicè “ atque Turcicè tantum extat: hic tamen liber Arabicus est, “ et de quatuor tomis secundus.’—ERPENIUS. " destitute of Turkish, which I should not be so much concerned at, were it not for five volumes in that language in our Public Library (Cambridge), which I behold with delight and concern at the same time—with delight, because they are ours, and so not to be despaired of; with concern, because I do not understand them. They are a translation of the great TABARI, who is the Livy of the Arabians, the very parent of their history; and, as far as I could find by inquiry, given over for lost in Arabic. I formerly inquired of my predecessor, Dr. Luke, concerning him, who said he had never met with him in the East, and that he was to be despaired of in Arabic. Monsieur D'Herbelot says the same." We learn from Sir W. Ouseley's Preface to EBN HAUKAL'S "Oriental Geography," that the Persian translation of TABARI'S great work was made by a man of considerable learning (vazír to one of the Samanian princes) in the year of the hejira 352, (anno Christi 963,) about forty years only after the death of TABARI; and this translator enriched the work with so much additional matter, from rare books of the astronomers, the Persian Fire-worshippers, Jews, and Muselmáns, that D'Herbelot prefers the translation to the original Arabic text,—“ de sorte que cette traduction est beaucoup plus curieuse que le texte Arabe.”—(Bibl. Orient. in Thabari.) It was this passage, as Sir William remarks, that gave occasion to a note in Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" (chap. 51 note 33): "Amidst our meagre relations, I must regret that D'Herbelot has not found and used a Persian translation of Tabari, enriched, as he says, with many extracts from the native historians of the Ghebers, or Magi." It appears also, from the same Preface to EBN HAUKAL, that a fine copy of this Per-posed by IBN ATHÍR,³⁷ bringing the general hissian translation (two folio vols. transcribed in 1446) was styled a “Phoenix Librorum” by the learned Professor Tychsen of Rostock. This inestimable MS. seems (from some lines written in gold letters) to have once been deposited in a royal library: it now belongs to Sir W. Ouseley’s Collection, and is described in the Catalogue of his Oriental MSS. No. 269. This Catalogue (printed for private circulation) enumerates other precious copies of the Persian TABRÍ—especially No. 271, in 3 vols. 4to, a beautiful and perfect MS. transcribed in 1488, and No. 274, in 2 vols. “This,” says Sir William, “is particularly valuable for a Preface, (of which I have never seen another copy,) containing much curious historical matter; tables of the different dynasties, ruled with red lines; the names and titles of sovereigns; duration of their reigns; works for which they were celebrated; their costume and attributes, (which may have been taken from gems, pictures, or statues). These tables come down to the time of the آل بويه or family of BÚIAH.” From a fine old copy of the Persian “TABRÍ,” collated with others in the Bibliothéque du Roi, Monsieur Dubeux, a very ingenious Orientalist of Paris, is engaged in preparing a translation.

³⁴ Corresponding to the year of the Christian era 912; but we have seen in the note above quoted from Pococke, that TABRI brought his history down to a period later by two years.

³⁵ It has long been supposed, on the authority of eminent writers hereafter quoted, that the original Arabic text of TABRI'S Chronicle exists only in fragments; but the Editor has lately felt much satisfaction on learning from a highly accomplished Orientalist, Dr. Rosen, that he had himself examined in the Royal Library at Berlin a great portion of the Arabic Work, comprised in five volumes. Yet that the whole should not exceed four, would appear from a note of the learned Erpenius, quoted in Sir William Ouseley's account of a rare and valuable MS., preserved in the British Museum (Cottonian Library, Vitell. A. iv). This account is given in the "Oriental Collections," vol. ii. p. 185, as follows:—

To this account I must further add, that the “Tárikh Andalus” is enriched with admirable poetry, and men of erudition regard it altogether as a most excellent and valuable work.

Now, among the most highly esteemed and extensive works on general history that have been composed in the Persian language, the “Rauzet al Safá”⁵⁷ seems entitled to the first place. This celebrated chronicle is, in some parts, minute and prolix; in others, brief and concise, written after the manner of an epitome or compendium. But in this chronicle there are numerous defects; for instance, of some most important events no mention whatever has been made: thus the battle of Kádesáh,⁵⁹ which was one of the principal victories obtained by the true believers, and their wars with the barbarian or heathen Persians, are wholly omitted in the “Táríkh Alfí,” and it would almost appear that this work had never undergone the author’s revisal or correction.

Since it has been shown that voluminous chronicles, treating of general history, are in this manner imperfect and defective, it will be necessary, as the best means of acquiring information on the subject of each dynasty and of each monarch, to consult various works: thus, if our object be a full account of events which happened while the RÁSHÍDI KHALIFAHS⁶⁰ reigned, (may they all partake of the divine blessing!) we should ⁷¹ سَلَجُوقِيّه SELÁJEKAH, the SELJÚKIANS, or SELGIUCIDES, as D’Herbelot calls them, were divided, according to that writer, into three branches—that of Irán, or Persia; of Kirmán; and of Rúm. The two former began to reign about the year 429, (or of Christ 1037,) and ceased in 590 (that is, of the Christian era, 1193). The SELJÚKIANS of Rúm began to reign in 480, and ceased in 700 (or from the year of Christ 1087 to 1300). See D’Herbelot in SELGIUKIAN.

⁷² سَامَانِيَان SAMÁNÍÁN. The nine princes of this dynasty, which began in the year 261 of the hejrah (or of Christ 374) and terminated in 383 (998), possessed, besides Transoxiana, most of those provinces which now constitute the Persian empire. They are styled SAMANIDES by many European writers.

⁷³ غَزْنَوِيَان or GHAZNEVIDES, as they are called by D’Herbelot, (GHAZNAVIAH in Arabic,) a dynasty comprehending fourteen princes, who reigned in Persia and India from the year of whom the “Tárikh Kámel” of IBN ATHÍR, already quoted, gives copious and detailed accounts.

Those who desire to peruse a circumstantial history of the SAFEVÍAH,⁷⁵ or last race of the Persian kings, may derive satisfactory information from the “Habíb al Siyar,” before mentioned, in which is comprised, with various other records, an account of SHÁH ISMÂÍL⁷⁶ deduced nearly to the time of his death.

On the subject also of this sovereign and of his son SHÁH TAHMASP,⁷⁷ many anecdotes may be collected from the work entitled “Ahassan al Tuárikh,”⁷⁸ composed by HASAN BEIG RÚMLÚ.⁷⁹

384 or 387 (of Christ 994 or 997) until the year 539 or 542 (of the Christian era 1144 or 1147).

⁷⁴ خوارزمشاهیان KHUÁREZM SHÁHIÁN. Of this powerful dynasty, which began A. H. 491, and lasted until 628, (or of the Christian era 1097 to 1230,) D'Herbelot enumerates nine sovereigns.

⁷⁵ صفویه The Safevi or Sefevi dynasty, styled Sofi or Sophy by some European authors. The kings of this race governed Persia from the year 1509 till about 1736, when they were overthrown by the usurper NÁDIR SHÁH.

But the “Tárikh Aálum Árá” does not display much elegance of style; it is however a curious and useful chronicle, abounding with excellent information. I have not seen any other work that particularly relates to the SEFEVI transactions since the time of SHÁH ABBÁS.

And TÁHER WAHÍD,⁸³ author of a chronicle entitled the “Tárikh” or History of SHÁH ABBÁS THÁNI⁸⁴ (or the Second), has furnished little more than a specimen of pleasing style, contenting himself with the mention of only some few im-

If our intention be to make researches concerning the history of those sovereigns who ruled in Arabia and Africa, we may consult the Arabic chronicles already mentioned; also the book entitled “Al âkud al ’lûliet fî Târikh ad’dowlet al resûlût;”⁸⁵ also the “Beghîet al mustefîd fî akhbâr medînah Zabîd:”⁸⁶ these two works relate to the history of Yemen (or Arabia Felix).

But the “Kitâb al mukaffi al Makrîzi”⁸⁷ is a history of Misr (or Egypt). MUSTAFA EFENDI⁸⁸ likewise, in his “Târikh,” which comprises a general account of different Muselmán dynasties, has included those kings who reigned in Egypt.

Now, respecting the kings of Rúm,⁹¹ who departed from this world before the family of OTHMÁN⁹² assumed the government, I have never seen any particular book containing a detailed account. The annals, however, of this OTHMAN race have been written on an extensive plan; but works containing records of that family are extremely scarce in India. Among them may be noticed the chronicle or “Tárikh” entitled “Hesht Behisht,”⁹³ composed by MULLÁ EDRÍS ANDALÍSÍ.⁹⁴ This book I have examined; it contains a detailed account of eight sovereigns of the OTHMAN dynasty, beginning with OTHMÁN BEIG

Of the MOGHUL sovereigns¹ who have reigned in countries professing the religion of Islám (or the Muhammedan faith), illustrious princes, as well of the CHANGÍZIAN as of the GURKÁNIAN or TAIMÚRIAN branches,² the history of each dynasty is amply recorded in books that circulate not unfrequently among us (in India).

Thus the history of CHANGÍZ KHAN, and of his descendants, until the arrival of HULÁKÚ KHÁN³ in Persia, has been composed by KHUÁJEH ELLÁ AD' DÍN OTÁ MULK JUÍNI,⁴ (the brother of KHUÁJEH SHAMS AD' DÍN MUHAMMED,⁵) in his chronicle entitled the "Tárikh Jehán Kushái."⁶

Next, as a sort of appendix or supplement to the "Jehán Kushái," I may here notice the "Tárikh Wessáf,"⁷ which copiously details the history of HULÁKÚ KHÁN, from that monarch's first entrance into Persia until the time of SULTÁN ABÚ SÂÍD KHÁN.⁸

We may also find in the work named "Jamiâ Rashídi,"⁹ very ample accounts, historical and genealogical, of CHANGÍZ KHÁN, his descendants, and the chief Moghul princes and nobles.

Respecting those KHÁNS of the CHANGÍZIAN family¹⁰ who reigned in the *Dasht i Kibchák*¹¹ and in Máwer al nahr,¹² I have never happened to see any distinct or particular work: their history, however, may be collected separately from various chronicles that record the affairs of several Persian kings.

in the “Rauzet al Safá,” the “Habíb al Siyar,” and in the “Tárikh Alfí.”

Concerning the history of SÁHIB KERÁN, the illustrious TAIMÚR, it is completely given in the book entitled “Zaffer NámeH,”¹⁹ written by MÚLÁNÁ SHERIF AD DÍN ÂLI YAZDI;²⁰ and it is further illustrated in different works; such as the “Matliâ As'sâdein” and the “Rauzet al Safá,” and the “Habíb al Siyar,” above mentioned.

Respecting however the chief transactions of HUMÁIÚN'S reign, we must seek information from the "Akber Námeḥ,"³¹ of the learned SHEIKH ÁBÚL FAZL,³² also from the "Ikbál Námeḥ,"³³ a work composed by SHERÍF MUATAMED KHÁN,³⁴ in which events are recorded at considerable length.

But of that illustrious emperor, the mighty AKBER PÁDŠÁH,³⁵ whose throne is in Paradise, the history has been written in various chronicles, each of them recording particular facts and circumstances which the others do not relate. Among the largest and most esteemed of those chronicles that celebrate his glorious career, are the "Akber Námeḥ," of SHEIKH ÁBÚL FAZL, above mentioned, who has minutely detailed, each in its proper place, the events that occurred during the forty-six years of AKBER'S government; and of the remaining four years, SHEIKH ENÁIET UL-LAH³⁶ has given an account in his work entitled the "Tekmileh Akber Námeḥ;"³⁷ while the SHERÍF MUATAMED KHÁN, in the "Ikbál Ná-

On the subject of that renowned and glorious sovereign the victorious SHÁH JEHÁN PÁDShÁH,⁴⁷ a second SÁHIB KERÁN, (whose dwelling-place is now in heaven,) we must consult the chronicle entitled “ Pádsháh NámeH,”⁴⁸ of which the first and second volumes were composed by MULLÁ ABD AL HAMÍD, of Lahúr, (or Lahore),⁴⁹ the third volume being a compilation made by MUHAMMED WÁRETH;⁵⁰ and this work (the “ Pádsháh NámeH ”) is of considerable utility, because it details every circumstance and particular fact that any reader can desire to know respecting the great SHÁH JEHÁN, from the time when he first ascended the imperial throne until the thirtieth year of his reign had closed. Of the year and three months remaining (of his reign) after that period, we have an account in the work called “ÂÁMEL SÁLEH,”⁵¹ composed by MUHAMMED SÁLEH KANBÚ,⁵² but not on the same comprehensive plan as the “Pádsháh NámeH.” It must however be acknowledged, that the “ÂÁmel Sáleh” is a very good composition, and furnishes the history of SHÁH JEHÁN from his very birth to the moment of his death.

On the subject of that distinguished personage before he had assumed the imperial government, various anecdotes have been recorded by SHERÍF MUATAMED KHÁN,⁵³ in a work which might with propriety be entitled “Mutekedmeh Pádsháh NámeH.”⁵⁴

Likewise AMÍNÁI KAZVÍNI MUNSHI⁵⁵ has written an account of the first ten years of that emperor’s reign; but this work only differs in style from the “Pádsháh NámeH” of ABD AL HAMÍD, already mentioned.

world, PÁDŠÁH ÂÁLUMGÍR JEHANSITÁN,⁵⁶ (who now enjoys the delights of eternal felicity,) all that relates to him before the commencement of his reign may be found in the “Pádsháh Námeh,” of which I have above spoken; and whatever occurred since the time when he placed himself on the exalted throne of empire, until the tenth year of his reign had ended, is related with ample details in the “Âálumgír Námeh,”⁵⁷ composed by MUHAMMED KÁZIM, the son of AMÍNÁI KAZVÍNÍ;⁵⁸ but of the remaining forty years, during which that powerful sovereign reigned, I have never seen a regular or continued history.

Likewise MUHAMMED SÁKI MUSTAAD KHÁN,⁵⁹ who composed the chronicle named “Másir Âálumgíri,”⁶⁰ has not by any means rendered his work complete; for he omitted to record several matters of considerable importance. Thus he has not mentioned the dignities and offices of honour accorded to royal princes, and their successive appointments to different situations, such as might best qualify them for managing the affairs of government: some he has noticed, but omitted others. Neither has he informed us in what year

In the auto-biographical "Memoirs of the Emperor JEHANGUEIR," a most curious and entertaining work, translated from the Persian by Major Price, we often read of the different ranks (from three hundred to many thousands) conferred by that great monarch on his favourites. "Next I promoted," says he, "FERIDOUN, the son of MAHOMMED KÚLY KHÁN, from the order of one thousand to that of two thousand horse." (P. 42.) Mentioning another person who had held the rank of one thousand, the Emperor says, "I now raised him to that of twelve thousand, a dignity never before conferred on any of the Ameirs of my father's court or my own." (P. 60.) LALA BEG "I raised from the rank of one thousand to that of two thousand horse." (P. 24.) But the rank, and no doubt the emolument, of thirty thousand he conferred on his beautiful wife NÚRJEHÁN, (or the light of the world,) "pre-eminent among the four hundred ladies of his haram." removals from different offices, or appointments and dignities, some are mentioned, but several omitted; thus he neglected to notice the dates and various circumstances of the appointment of *Haft hazári*⁶⁴ of GHÁZIAD'DÍN KHÁN BAHÁDUR FÍRÚZ JANG,⁶⁵ and the *Shish hazári*⁶⁶ of ZÚ'LFÍKÁR KHÁN BAHÁDUR NASRET JANG,⁶⁷ two distinguished generals.

On the other hand he relates with minute precision some very trifling occurrences little worthy of being recorded in history, and by no means interesting; such as particulars concerning chapels or places of prayer, the merits of different preachers, and similar topics, which had been subjects of discussion among his intimate companions. On this account his work (the "Másir Âalumgíri"⁶⁸) is not held in high estimation among those learned men who know how to appreciate historical compositions.

but these works respecting him have not yet fallen under my inspection.

One was written by a person named ABD AL HÁDI,⁷⁰ who had obtained the title of KÁMÚR KHÁN,⁷¹ and certainly was an author possessing some talents and ingenuity. He says, on the subject of his own work, "I have composed this book, which comprises a history of the *Jaghatái*⁷² sovereigns, from his majesty the SÁHIB KERÁN TAIMÚR to that great monarch who has lately seated himself in Paradise, and I have divided this chronicle into two volumes; one containing records from the time of the first SÁHIB KERÁN (EMÍR TAIMÚR) until the reign of SHÁH JEHÁN, entitled the second SÁHIB KERÁN: "the other volume of my chronicle relates to his majesty now in heaven, the mighty ÂÁLUMGÍR."

The other book of which I have heard must now be mentioned; it was composed in the province of Dekkan,⁷³ by a person named MÍR HÁSEM,⁷⁴ on the history of ÁÁLUMGÍR, and contains a detailed and particular statement of various transactions and occurrences, which the author himself had actually witnessed; but this work has never fallen into my hands.

Another writer may be here noticed, who undertook to compose a history of ÁÁLUMGÍR by order of that illustrious emperor now resident in Paradise. This writer was MÍRZÁ MUHAMMED,⁷⁵ generally called NEÁMET KHÁN HÁJÍ,⁷⁶ an eminent personage, who obtained the title of DÁNISHMAND KHÁN;⁷⁷ and he has recorded the events of that monarch's reign as far as the third year. Although his work is written in a very pleasing style, yet it occasionally offends the reader's delicacy by indecent jests and coarse witticisms, in which the author was too much accustomed to indulge.

And in the time of that emperor whom the Almighty has now taken into his merciful keeping, MUHAMMED FARRAKH SÍR,⁷⁸ an able and accomplished writer, named AKHLÁS KHÁN,⁷⁹ received orders to compose a history of that monarch's reign.

In the same manner a very ingenious Munshi, one MÍR MUHAMMED ÁHASAN,⁸⁰ who was surnamed MAANI KHÁN,⁸¹ undertook a poetical account of that deceased emperor (FARRAKH SÍR), and partly executed it; but the works of those two last-mentioned authors (AKHLÁS KHÁN and MAANI KHÁN) have not acquired much celebrity.

While that sovereign, who now reposes in the bliss of Paradise, the great MUHAMMED SHÁH PÁDShÁH,⁸² held the reins of empire, a person named MUHAMMED MUHASAN,⁸³ a very able and intelligent writer, composed, by the imperial command, an account of transactions that occurred during a few years of that monarch's government, and performed the task with considerable elegance of language. In the year of the hejirah one thousand one hundred and fifty-two,⁸⁴ this excellent person died; and through the incapability or negligence of his son, the commencement of this work was destroyed or lost.

But respecting those sovereigns who governed *Hindústán*⁸⁵ before the GÚRKÁNIAN princes (or those of TAIMUR'S race) assumed the supreme power over that country, some late writers have composed historical works; among which the chronicle, or TÁRÍKH," of FERISHTAH⁸⁶ is regarded as the most comprehensive and excellent.

Next to that we may place the "Tabkát Akberi,"⁸⁷ because little had been written before its appearance respecting the history of those kings who had formerly reigned in Dekkan; and as these two works comprise a general account of all Indian dynasties, the particulars respecting some families are written in a brief and comprehensive manner; such as the history of those kings who ruled in Bengál,⁸⁸ and of the Sind monarchs:⁸⁹ there are however, besides these two chronicles just quoted, several other books on this subject.

Among the works that relate to one particular dynasty of the Hind sovereigns,⁹⁰ we must notice

⁹⁸ تاريخ قطب شاهي In the Catalogue of Sir William Ouseley’s MSS. (No. 319) a large quarto volume is described as in Haiderabad,⁹⁹ and the work entitled “Merát Sekanderi,”¹⁰⁰ which is a history of the Gujerát kings.¹ Regarding the same dynasty also there is a chronicle written in the Arabic language, and called “Zaffer al Wáleh be muzaffer wa áleh.”²

We have, besides, many historical compositions on the subject of Sind and of Kashmír,³ with records of those sovereigns who in past ages have governed India, such as the “Táj al Másir,”⁴ and the “Tabkát Násri;”⁵ also the “Khazáin al Fa-the “Tárikh Kuttub Sháhi,” or “History of Golconda;” and in the same Catalogue (No. 287) we find mention of a folio MS. volume, beautifully written, and ornamented with gold lines, entitled the “Tárikh Sulatín,” or “Chronicle of Kings,” containing anecdotes of the Kuttub Sháh dynasty. This is said to be a rare and curious work. In another Catalogue of Eastern MSS., compiled in Bengal, the editor has seen described a volume entitled “Towárikh Kottub Sháhi” (تواريخ قطب شاهي), or “A History of the Kottub Sháhi dynasty, or Kings of Golconda (كلکنڈا), called also Tilung (تلنگ), and by European geographers Telingana.” This work begins with the history of TAIMÚR, and is divided into four chapters or sections, and an appendix.

On this subject we have also the "Tárikh Mubárek Sháhi,"¹¹ the "Tabkát Mahmúd Sháhi,"¹² and the "Tabkát Bahádur Sháhi,"¹³ besides many other chronicles of the same description, which however at present but rarely appear in this country ; and when, from time to time, any copies of the works above mentioned fall by chance into our hands, they are found to be imperfect and inaccurate.

⁹ تغلق نامہ نظم See the note immediately following.

¹⁰ امیر خسرو دہلوی This distinguished poet, as we learn from Major Stewart in his Catalogue of Tippoo's Library, (p. 63) "unfortunately lived at a period when vice was triumphant throughout Hindústán. He, however, had the happiness, during the few last years of his life, to see a just prince on the throne, whose virtues he has commemorated in his 'History of Az Addeen Tughlic Sháh.' The poet survived his patron but a few months, and died A.D. 1325. His tomb is still respected at Dhely."

But if the chief men of this age, the great pillars of empire, relinquishing their indifference on the subject of such matters, and entertaining a laudable desire to know the history of all events that have occurred from the commencement of the eleventh year of his late Majesty's reign (that monarch who now abides in Paradise, the constant companion of felicity) to the present year, one thousand one hundred and sixty-two of the hejrah, (or of the Christian era 1748,) should cause those transactions to be recorded faithfully in regular order, they would confer an important favour on all those attached to the illustrious race of our Indian sovereigns.

ADDITIONAL NOTES.

Page 12. The Spanish work of Clavijo, to which an allusion is here made, was published "en Sevilla" (1582) under the following title—"Historia del gran Tamerlan, y itinerario y enarracion del viage, y relacion de la embaxada que Ruy Gonçalez de Clavijo le hizo per mandado del muy poderoso Sennor rey don Henrique al tercero de Castilla," &c. It has been already mentioned that Sir Gore Ouseley possesses a portrait of TAIMÚR; supposed to be original, evidently old, and in style like those pictures executed two or three hundred years ago by excellent artists of Samarkand, Balkh, and other places in the north. There is, however, a considerable difference between this drawing and the portrait of TIMOUR, engraved after an Indian painting, and prefixed by M. Langlès to his translation of the "Instituts Politiques et Militaires de Tamerlan," &c. : they scarcely correspond in any circumstance either of face, dress, arms, or attitude. From the Spanish traveller above named, (who had seen the Barbarian Conqueror,) we learn that TAIMÚR wanted one finger of each hand; but neither does the drawing nor the engraved portrait indicate any appearance of such a defect or mutilation.

His nails are tinged with some red dye, (probably hinná), according to a custom of great antiquity in the East (see Sir William Ouseley's "Travels," vol. III. p. 565); and the drawing represents an extraordinary substitute for a sling, by which is supported his left arm, which perhaps had been wounded, or was diseased: this substitute is a branch of some tree, split or forked, and thick, proportionably, as a man's wrist; the forked part is rudely fastened round the neck of TAIMÚR, and the ends project behind in such a manner as must have proved extremely inconvenient to the wearer, like the iron collar and long projecting handle with which in some countries the unfortunate African slaves are tormented. It seems strange, that those who furnished the conqueror with splendid dresses did not at the same time supply a more convenient sling, which might have been easily made of silk or linen; but the editor, from circumstances which he himself observed in Hyrcania, is inclined to believe that the branch had been part of some tree superstitiously venerated for its supposed medicinal virtues of preternatural efficacy.

P. 14. Here it seems necessary to correct a mistake which the editor made respecting those portions of TABRI'S Arabic text now preserved in the Royal Library at Berlin: there Dr. Rosen examined four volumes; the other part which he mentioned belongs to the University of Leyden. From a very eminent Orientalist, Professor Kosegarten, we learn that the four Berlin volumes of TABRI'S original work in Arabic are the fifth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth. The Leyden Manuscript is the third volume. Professor Kosegarten does not know that any of the other parts exist in the libraries of Europe, and he is inclined to believe (like the author of this Essay, p. 14) that the whole work must have occupied about twenty volumes. "Integrum hoc opus, Arabica lingua conscriptum, “ Tabaristanensis viginti circiter partibus complexus esse videtur; quarum, quantum scio, non nisi quinque in Bibliothecis Occidentalibus adhuc repertæ sunt,—tertia, quinta, decima, undecima, duodecima; pars tertia, quæ Lugduni Batavorum in Bibliotheca Academica asservatur,” &c. (See p. iv. of the Preface to Kosegarten’s “ Tabaristanensis Annales,” published in Arabic, with a Latin translation (from the fifth volume) at Gryplswald, 1831, quarto.) It has been already mentioned (in a note to this Essay, p. 15) that Ockley found some portion of the Arabic TABRI among Archbishop Laud’s MSS.; but of what volume this fragment was a part, has not been ascertained. That the second volume is preserved in the British Museum appears from the “ Oriental Collections,” before quoted (p. 14), and the Bibliothèque du Roi in Paris likewise possesses a portion; but this, however useful in collation, adds little to our stock of TABRI’S Arabic text, since it is, unfortunately, the third volume, like the MS. of Leyden—“ Codex Bombycinus, quo continetur pars tertia Chronici quod Tabari sive Tabariense appellatur, idque ab auctoris nomine,” &c. (See Catal. Libr. MSS. Bibl. Reg. Galliæ, vol. 1. p. 161.) TABRI must have been a voluminous author, if, as report says, he covered with writing every day, during forty years, almost eighty pages. “ Mox etiam in libros componendos tantum laboris impendit, ut per quadraginta annos quotidie quadraginta fere folia scribendo implevisse dicatur.” (See Kosegarten’s Preface, as above quoted, p. i.)

P. 24. Concerning the “ Kitáb Fatuhh ” (كتاب فتوح), or “ Book of Victories,” composed by IBN ÁÂSIM of Kúfah (ابن اعثم كوفي), it may be remarked, (as of TABRI’S “ Great Chronicle ” already noticed,) that the original work is chiefly known through the medium of a very old Persian translation. The editor endeavoured, but without success, to procure a copy of the Arabic text at Shíráz, Isfahán, Tehrán, and other cities in Persia, and subsequently at Constantinople. ÁÂSIM AL KÚFI, whom he regards as the father of him who composed the “Kitáb Fatuhh,” died, according to Çasiri, in the year 117 of the Muhammedan era (or of Christ 735), and was eminent as one among the seven earliest readers of the Korán:—“Ase-mus Cuphiensis, unus e septem insignibus Alcorani lectoribus, cujus obitus in an. Eg. 117 incidit.” (See the “Biblioth. Arabico-Hispan. Escorialensis,” vol. II., Index referring to vol. I. p. 504.) That this venerable personage (ÁÂSIM of Kúfah) might, in early youth, have personally conversed with veteran warriors whose valour had contributed towards the conquest of Persia, was mentioned as the editor’s opinion, in a letter quoted by the Rev. Mr. Walpole (see his “Collection of Travels,” &c. vol. II. p. 428): and ÁÂSIM, we may reasonably suppose, would have communicated the information obtained from those veterans to his son, whose Chronicle, in fact, abounds with minute details, such as indicate very strongly the genuine authority of ocular witnesses. By so powerful a recommendation, the editor of this Essay was induced, many years ago, to translate all those passages of IBN ÁÂSIM’s work which illustrate Persian history, the wars and negotiations between Muselmán chiefs and the Sassanian princes and their generals, with a variety of curious and interesting anecdotes, which he has not hitherto found in any other Arabic or Persian record. These will, perhaps, be soon offered to the public.

P. 26. A history of the GHAZNEVIDE dynasty has been undertaken by that able Orientalist, Professor Wilken of Berlin, and will be dedicated to the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland.

P. 30. Rúm. It appears from D'Herbelôt, ("Bibl. Orient." in Roum.) that the Arabian geographer EBN AL VARDI, in his "Kherídat al Ajáieb," gives a very extensive signification to this name, comprehending under it the regions beginning at the Atlantic Ocean, Spain, France, England, Germany, Poland, Italy, Hungary, &c., as far as Constantinople and the Euxine Sea, where it joins Sclavonia and the borders of Russia; but the name, he adds, is more properly given to Romaniah and Romiliah, Thrace, Greece, &c. Another geographer, in his "Massahat al Ardh," or "Extent of the Earth," restricts Rúm to a part of Asia Minor. HAMDALLAH KAZVÍNI, in his "Nuzahat al Kulúb," (chap. vii.) mentions as the countries by which Rúm is bounded, Armen or Armenia, Gurjstán or Georgia, Sís, Misr or Egypt, Shám or Syria, and the Bahr-i-Rúm, the Sea of Rúm or Mediterranean:—

حدود مملکت روم ارمن و کرجستان و سیس و مصر و شام و بحر روم

P. 32. Taríkh Jehán Kushái (or Kushá). Of this title is the more modern work translated into French (and English) by Sir William Jones, who thus notices it in the "Catalogue of Persian Books," annexed to his "Persian Grammar," تاریخ جهانکشایا تاریخ نادری من کلام میرزا مهدی
 "The history of the life of NADIR SHAH, king of Persia, written by MIRZA MAHADI," as Sir William Jones explains it. This title might be more literally translated "The Tá-ríkh (or Chronicle) Jehán Kushá, or the Táríkh Náderi, from the pen of MÍRZÁ MAHADI." The full name of this author was MÍRZÁ MUHAMMED MAHADI KHÁN MÁZINDERÁNI—میرزا محمد مهدی خان مازندرانی. There are many other instances of Persian works bearing the same titles.

P. 36. Wákiát Báberi. Of this valuable work a highly interesting translation has lately appeared under the following title: "Memoirs of Zehered-din Baber, emperor of Hindustan; written by himself in the Jaghatai Turki, and translated partly by the late John Leyden, Esq. M. D., partly by William Erskine, Esq.; with Notes and a Geographical and Historical Introduction; together with a Map of the countries between the Oxus and Jaxartes, and a Memoir regarding its construction; by Charles Waddington, Esq., of the East India Company's Engineers." (London, 1826. Quarto.) In the Preface to this excellent work (Baber's Memoirs, page 1) the tract of country called Jaghatái is described as extending "from the Ulugh Tagh mountains on the north, to the Hindu Kush mountains on the south; and from the Caspian Sea on the west, to the deserts of Cobi, beyond Terfán, Kashghar, and Yarkend on the east."

Pp. 38—48. The work of "Ferishtah," mentioned in these pages, was first published in English, several years ago, under the following title: "The History of Hindostan, translated from the Persian by Alexander Dow, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel in the Company's service." A new edition of this work appeared in the year 1803. (London, 3 vols. octavo.) But a most excellent translation, made by Lieutenant-Colonel Briggs, was published in 1829, entitled "The History of the Rise of the Mahomedan Power in India till the year 1612; translated from the original Persian of Mahomed Kasim Ferishta." (London, 4 vols. octavo.)

P. 51. Hesht Behisht. It has been already observed (p. 57) that Persian works totally different sometimes bear the same titles. A beautiful poem by EMÍR KHUSRAU of Dehli is called the Hesht Behisht, or "Eight Paradises." Thus we find under the title of Negáristán (نگارستان) three works composed by different authors (AHMED AL GHAFÁRI, ALI BEN TAIFÚR BUSTÁMI, and KEMÁL PÁSHÁ) mentioned in the Catalogue of Sir W. Ouseley's Oriental MSS. Nos. 452, 454, 455; and in the Bodleian Library at Oxford there is a fourth work, entitled "Negáristán, or the Gallery of Pictures," by JUÍNI جويني
